THE GUILDHALL BANQUET.

MOMENTOUS SPEECH BY THE PREMIER.

OUTSPOKEN STATEMENT ON THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

(Reuter's Service To The "Telegraph.")

London, November 10. The Guildhall banquet yesterday was, as usual, a brilliant function and was attended by members of the Cabinet, Peers of the realm, members of the House of Commons and distinguished representatives of the Army and Navy, the Church and the City. Mr. Asquith delivered an important pronouncement on foreign affairs in responding to the toast of His Majesty's Ministers. He said:—"We are living in anxious times and are spectators of great and moving events. The Balkan armies are in effective possession of Macedonia, and Thrace. Salonika, the gateway through which Christianity first entered Europe, is occupied by Greeks, and we may to any moment hear of the fall of Constantinople itself."

POWERS WORKING TOGETHER.

It is a satisfaction to be able to assure you that as far as this country is concerned, its relations with the other Powers, without a single exception, were never more friendly and cordial. The great Powers are working together with a closeness of touch and frankness, and freedom of communication and discussion which are remarkable, and which may seem almost unintelligible to those who believe that because, for certain purposes, the Powers have been and are arranged in different groups, they must therefore in time of a European crisis be arrayed in opposite camps. Nothing is further from fact. The Powers have been blamed in some quarters because they did not succeed in averting the war. They sought, and sought honestly and earnestly, by diplomatic pressure and without resort to force, to secure conditions of order and good government in the European Provinces of the Ottoman Empire, but forces were at work which were beyond the control of diplomatic manipulation. The Balkan States, having matured their plans and perfected their equipment and co-ordinated their reciprocal action, decided that force was the only effectual remedy. They, and they alone, were prepared to use it. They took the matter into their own hands. Things can never be again as they were, and it is the business of statesmen everywhere to recognise and accept an accomplished fact. When Pitt was mortally stricken by the news of the battle of Austerlitz and came home to die, he told those about him to roll up the map of Europe which hung on the wall; but even the campaign of Austerlitz did not produce changes so sudden and so startlingly and overwhelmingly complete as those which during the last month have been wrought by the Balkan Confederacy.

MAP TO BE RECAST.

The map of Eastern Europe has to be recast and in the process it may be that ideas, preconceptions, and policies which were born in what is now a bygone era will have to be modified and reconstructed, or even go altogether by the board. Upon one thing I believe the general opinion of Europe to be unanimous, and that is that the victors are not to be robbed of the fruits which have cost them so dear. (Loud cheers.) There is, so far as I know, no disposition anywhere to belittle the magnitude of the struggle or to dispute the desirability of the result.

This country has no direct interest in the exact form which the consequent political and territorial redistributions may ultimately take, but there are other Powers whose special relations—geographical, economic, ethnical, and historical—with the scene of the conflict and its destination are such that they cannot be expected not to claim a hearing and a voice when the time comes for a permanent settlement. I purposely refrain at this stage from even indicating the points—some of them full of difficulty—which must inevitably emerge for solution. For the moment, and so long as a state of belligerency continues, the Government, so far as their influence goes, deprecate the raising of isolated questions which, if handled separately and at once, may seem likely to lead to irreconcilable divergencies, but which may assume a different and perhaps more practicable aspect if they are reserved to be dealt with from a wider point of view or by a general settlement.

WAR SOMETIMES NECESSARY.

War is terrible, continued the Premier, though it may from time to time be a necessary form of arbitration when a deadlock arrives in human affairs; and none of its worst horrors have been absent from the campaign which is now being waged. It is at this moment the first and greatest of European interests to circumscribe its scope. For that object the great Powers have laboured as with one will. So far they have laboured successfully, and it is our hope and belief that they will continue to labour to that end.

WHERE ALL ARE UNITED.

At such times as these the burden of responsibility which falls upon the shoulders of the Government—onerous as it always is—is exceptionally heavy, and it is a source of gratification to them to know that, however much we may be divided among ourselves in domestic controversy, we have in these larger matters the sympathy and support of the whole community, and can speak in the councils of Europe in the name and with the authority of a united people. (Loud and general cheers.)

MR. CHURCHILL'S SPEECH.

Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, replying on behalf of the Navy, emphasised there was no harm done in plain speech. The Germans had robust minds and a high sense of honour and fairplay and liked affairs put squarely. Relations between Germany and Great Britain steadily improved with every evidence of our determination to maintain our supremacy. The way to end the rivalry was to go right on and prove that we could not be overtaken. The right hon. gentleman announced that he would propose improvements in the pay of the Navy before the end of the Parliament. This would further stimulate the buoyant recruiting and would make it possible to bring the Sixth Battle Squadron into existence in 1913, fully manned; thus increasing the margin of security. The strong British Fleet now in the Mediterranean demanded special vigilance in Home waters. There was no reason to anticipate trouble, but the Home Fleet was quite equal to any task that might be imposed.

COLONIAL NAVIES.

Reuter's (Service to the "Telegraph.") London, November 10. Continuing, Mr. Churchill said the year had been memorable for the participation of the Dominions in the Naval defence of the Empire. At the present moment, at a similar banquet, the Premier of the Commonwealth was explaining how the Australian Fleet would be controlled by the Admiralty in war time. In a few days, the Canadian Parliament would announce a Naval policy worthy the power and loyalty of the great Dominion. The future required renewed exertions, for none could foretell the difficulties and dangers, though none would doubt our resolve and ability to come safely through them.

Colonel Seely, Secretary of State for War, replying for the Army, paid a tribute to the work done by the Dominions in the creation of citizen armies. He looked forward to the day when everyone would extend civil patriotism to defending his country.

THE HARTMAN COMEDY COMPANY.

"Fairy Tales."

The fun was fast and furious at the Theatre Royal on Saturday night, when the Ferris Hartman Company staged "Fairy Tales." An extravaganza of a distinctly pantomimic stamp, the play was full of merry quips and piquant humour, and as it also abounded in tuneful music and a plentiful degree of clever dancing, it is almost unnecessary to say that the well-filled house spent a happy, rollicking evening. The piece was a pretty little myth woven around Jack Horner's "plum," and most of the fairy tale characters so familiar to childhood were cleverly introduced, these including The Crooked Man, Jack Horner, Simple Simon, Marjorie Daw, Old Woman in the Shoe, Mother Goose, etc.

It was a bright, happy, care-killing production, and the members of the Company threw themselves with characteristic zest and merit into the interpretation of it. In preliminary notices Mr. Roscoe Arbuckle, in the character of the Queen of the Fairies, had been described as "a real scream." And so he was. Physically the bulkiest and weightiest member of the whole company, he was, in ballet-skirts and pink "tights," the most ex-cruciatingly funny figure we have seen on the stage for many a long day. His make-up, too, was perfect, while he played the part to a nicety. Whenever he was before the lights he kept the house in roars of laughter. Mr. Ferris Hartman, as the Crooked Man, was extremely clever. It was a role by no means easy to handle, but Mr. Hartman depicted the character most strikingly, the real actor being demonstrated in all his work, especially in the finer and most subtle points of his acting. Of the other characters, Mr. Lawrence Bowes as Jack Horner, and Mr. Walter de Leon in the part of the Gingerbread Man, were especially good, the former's vocal efforts winning him deserved applause, and the latter's extremely clever dancing giving, as usual, great delight. The ladies were all good, particularly Miss Jessie Hart as the Old Woman in the Shoe. Taken all round, the production was really first-class, and everybody who saw it went away thoroughly happy and delighted.

The Company concludes a most successful season to-night with a repeat performance of their funniest and cleverest play of the whole repertoire—"One Night On"—and a packed house is a certainty.

A STRANGE COINCIDENCE.

The fall of the city of Salonika synchronising with the Festival of Demetrius, the Patron Saint of Salonika, has sent Athens wild with enthusiasm. Te Deums have been sung, bells rung and illuminations displayed.

A SKIRMISH.

The Turkish headquarters at Hadamkeni Tokharkesseni report constant wireless communication with Adrianople.

SNOW.

Messages from Cetinje and Belgrade report heavy snowfalls in Montenegro and Macedonia.

AUSTRIA AND SERBIA.

Reuter's correspondent at Vienna states that the Austrian Minister to Belgrade, who was recently summoned to Vienna, is returning to his post with fresh instructions. It is understood that he will emphasise Austria's desire for good relations if Serbia offers guarantees that she will return to the policy pursued when M. Andriassy was Premier. It is asserted in the press that the German and Italian Ministers to Belgrade have been instructed to declare that the Triple Alliance regard the appearance of Serbia in the Adriatic as contrary to their interests.

Reuter's correspondent at Belgrade reports that the newspapers are unanimous in insisting on the vital necessity for Serbia to have her own seaport, and that guarantees therefor must be given her before peace negotiations are begun.

POWERS TAKING SIDES.

Reuter's correspondent at Constantinople reports that the feeling is growing that the Triple Entente—Britain, Russia and France—is siding with the Allies, and the Triple Alliance—Germany, Austria and Italy—with Turkey. Concern is expressed at this upshot.

THE ADVANCE ON CHATALJA.

Reuter's correspondent at Sofia says it is unofficially reported that the Bulgarians have reached Derkos, to the northern end of the Chatalja lines.

A HOLY WAR.

A message from Constantinople states that Sheikh Hui Islam has appealed to the Ulemas to join the Army and preach a Holy War, citing the example of the priests of the Cross, who are working hand in hand with the ranks of the Allies.

PROTECTION OF FOREIGNERS.

The commanders of the foreign warships at Constantinople have met aboard the French cruiser to concert measures in the event of a protection of their nationals being necessary.

HEAVY LOSSES.

Reuter's Belgrade correspondent states that the Serbian casualties at Prilep were 2,500 and the Turkish losses 8,000.

TELEGRAMS.

THE BALKAN WAR.

PORTS CAPTURED.

Reuter's (Service to the "Telegraph.") London, November 9. Reuter's correspondent at Sofia reports that the Bulgarians have captured two important ports outside Adrianople. The Queen is visiting the wounded at Mustapha.

TURKS CLAIM BIG VICTORY.

A message from Constantinople says that the Vali of Adrianople reports that a violent battle lasting 38 hours ended on Friday in a victory which must be regarded as one of the most brilliant feats in Ottoman history. He says the Bulgarians retreated in disorder before the bayonet charges of the Turks, who captured quantities of rifles and ammunition.

BULGARIAN CAPTURES.

It is reported in Sofia that the Bulgarians have captured Kavala, the Turks, being unable to escape, surrendering. It is also reported that the Bulgarians captured Gumurjina on the Constantinople Railway.

H.M.S. SHANNON.

Reuter's correspondent at Gibraltar states that the cruiser Shannon, which has been under repair, has been ordered to be ready to sail in 48 hours.

ON TO THE CAPITAL.

The Greek fleet is transporting troops on the left bank of the river Maritza with a view to attacking the Dardanelles. They intend to enter Constantinople with the Bulgarians.

THE FALL CONFIRMED.

The fall of Salonika is confirmed in Constantinople.

Reuter's correspondent at Athens states that the Crown Prince has telegraphed to the King that the terms of surrender have been signed and that 25,000 Turks surrendered.

STORMING SCUTARI.

London, November 10. Despatches from Riaka state that the Montenegrins, despite the heavy storm, have transported siege guns to the eastern shore of Lake Scutari and completed preparations for a fresh storming of the city. It is estimated that the Moslem refugees have swelled the population to 70,000; and that they are in dire straits.

TYPHOID RAGING.

A Belgrade message states that typhoid is raging among the 60,000 prisoners in the capital and in the interior.

SERBIA'S DEMAND.

M. Pasios, the Serbian Prime Minister, interviewed by Reuter, declared that Serbia must have an outlet to the Adriatic. For this reason she has shed blood rather than for territorial extension. She has been offered an outlet in the Aegean Sea, but this would only offend her allies if accepted.

PRISONERS IN GREECE.

A message from Athens states that there are 29,000 prisoners in Greece, besides 2,000 sent by the Montenegrins.

M. Raftivan, the new Governor of Salonika, has left for Salonika, being accompanied by a numerous staff.

ADRIANOPLE'S FLIGHT.

Reuter's (Service to the "Telegraph.") London, November 10. Lieutenant Wegener telegraphed on Saturday to the Vienna "Reichspost" that two ports, Kartaltepe and Patratpe, were captured on Thursday night. They are north-west and south-east of Adrianople respectively. The stormers were reinforced. The Bulgarians now dominate the city, whose capitulation is hourly expected.

REASSURING THE CAPITAL.

Later. Reuter's correspondent at Constantinople states that the Ministry of Interior, in a proclamation, says the war has not yet had the satisfactory result desired. The presence of the enemy at the Chatalja gate to Constantinople, where the possibility of failure must be faced, was the cause of anxiety as to the safety and tranquillity of the capital. The Government had neglected no measures to preserve order, and the inhabitants are exhorted to be calm, while a warning is given to disseminators of false reports, which were the cause of the Powers sending their warships on the scene, to the effect that they will be severely punished.

FROM THE F.M.S.

GIFT OF A CRUISER.

London, November 10.

Reuter's correspondent at Singapore states that the Sultan of Perak, at a meeting of the Federal Council on the 12th inst., will move a resolution approving of an offer to Britain by the Federal States of a first-class armoured ship, to be constructed as soon as His Majesty's advisers consider desirable. [The above information is also contained in a special telegram to the "Telegraph" appearing on Page 5, which came to hand after we had gone to press on Saturday.]

NO HOME RULE.

THE UNIONIST PLAN.

London, November 9. Mr. Bonar Law, speaking at Liverpool, said the Unionists when they got into power will reduce the Nationalist representation in the Imperial Parliament to 45. That, he said, would end Home Rule for ever.

L. R. C. DANCE.

On Saturday a most enjoyable soiree was held under the auspices of the Lusitano Recreation Club there being present a great many ladies and gentlemen. The band of the 8th Rajpote contributed a very well selected programme of music and popular airs for the dances were a feature of the evening. At 8.30 a splendid dinner was served. Mr. Rooha, the President, and his energetic staff spared no trouble to make the guests feel at home. The Club premises were artistically decorated and the allegorical pictures on the mirrors were a great attraction. Mr. Isidoro Costa of the Philharmonica composed a special march known as the L.R.C. March which was played by the band. The first song of the season was an unqualified success and augurs well for the functions that are to follow.

CHOIR SUNDAY.

Yesterday was kept as "Choir Sunday" at St. John's Cathedral, when full services were sung at Matins and Evensong. The music in the morning included Mendelssohn's "I waited for the Lord," the solo parts of which were effectively rendered by Mrs. Goldsmith and Miss L. White, and a "Te Deum" by Stanford in B. In the evening the very fine Magnificat by Martin in E-flat was sung but was somewhat marred by traces of uncertainty. The Hallelujah Chorus was rendered as well as we ever remember it having been done in the Cathedral. The prelude, the Ray, V.H.O. Moyle, at both services, made special requests for an increased offering which was for the Choir Fund.

"Crass Stupidity."

Mr. Liu, the President of the Board of Industry and Commerce, has, it is said, issued instructions by which the employment of foreign capital in the working of mines, the sale of mining sites to foreigners, and the engagement of foreign mining engineers and experts, are all for-bidden. A year ago we were told that the then inchoate Republic would faithfully observe all Treaty obligations, entered into by the Manchu Government prior to the outbreak of the revolution.
Since that date, it is true provincial authorities have shown a marked tendency to ignore this pledge, if not to repudiate it, but we must confess we were not prepared for such an utter disavowal of a Treaty by a member of the Cabinet. Deplorable as this dead set against foreign assistance is from an international point of view, it is China herself who will be the greatest sufferer from it.
China possesses all the raw materials necessary for the construction of railways, for the equipment of armies and navies, or for the manufacture of industrial machinery, yet she will not avail herself of them. She has stores of coal and iron that would give her a commanding position in the world's markets, and might elevate her to a rank that her world would carry weight in the councils of the world, yet she carefully does all in her power to ensure their remaining idle in the bowels of the earth. Such crass stupidity is almost unintelligible;
even the officials of the late dynasty did not hesitate to engage foreign experts for the Government mines, and surely the Republican authorities, among whom are to be found so many really enlightened men, must realize that China possesses neither the science nor the capital needed to exploit properly her vast hidden wealth.

Physical Culture and National Predominance.

There are not wanting, the inevitable male Cassandras who never tire of associating the final downfall of Great Britain with the devotion of her sons and daughters to athletics. The chorus has been led by Mr. Rudyard Kipling who trolled of the "flannelled fool at the wicket and the muddled oaf at the goal." In places of such free and spontaneous forms of sport, Kipling and his fellow-thinkers would fain have national regimentation and universal conscription.
Even in the Far East, where the openings for healthy relaxation are comparatively fewer than at home, there is the same disposition in some quarters to decry athletics because they take away too much time from business and thus enable the Germans or the Japanese to beat us in the race for economic supremacy. It will occur to many that even if it could be proved that British and American trade is really on the downgrade in these regions and that their decline is directly due to the love of outdoor sport, yet if this economic supremacy can be won only by the sacrifice of health and a reasonable amount of pleasure, the price paid for it is much too high.

To Prevent Prison Breaking.
In order to prevent any more escapes from the Tombs Prison,
New York, from which a prisoner recently got away in sensational circumstances, three powerful electric lights have been installed in the courtyard of the prison.
On each lamp is a reflector, placed in such a position that very nook of the yard is made visible. The reflections of the lights can be seen from the streets. Three more lights are to be placed in the yard, and by night the entire outside of the Tombs will be illuminated.

Artificial Milk from Beans.
At an exhibition held in London recently, artificial milk manufactured from soya [Manchurian] beans, attracted great attention. According to the 'Osaka Mainichi' correspondent, the artificial milk is declared by authorities to be more nourishing, cheaper, and more free from impurities than the genuine article. If the new product should stand the test of experience excellent markets would be found in China and Japan.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Dust Problem.

Writing in the "Motor" on the work of the Road Board, Mr. Henry Sturmer says:—The time has now come when the Board should expend the money received as received, and those of us who get about the country much will agree that there is yet a great deal to be done. We were told, if I remember rightly, that the first work of the Board would be to deal with the dust question, and that to tar-treat the whole of the main roads of the country would cost, if any, it was, some £800,000. Just how many miles of the main roads have been so treated does not appear, but there is ample room yet for extension of this very useful branch of work, and I think, when that is done, selected roads may be taken which, although not officially classed as main roads, still have a very large amount of motor traffic over them.

Directors and Shareholders.

In an article on "The Whole Duty of Directors," the "Accountant" says:—The law certainly loads the dice in favour of the shareholder. That, in spite of this loading, the company is sometimes ill-served, must, we think, be imputed not solely to the sins of the directors (although we do not for one moment pretend that all directors are paragons), but also—and to a very considerable extent—to the fact that shareholders, as a class, are much less desirous of promoting the permanent welfare of the company than are directors, as a class. If this were not the case, most company abuses would vanish automatically.

The "Englishmen."

We recently protested says the "Globe" against the use of the American term "Britisher," which is being more and more employed in England, as well as in the Colonies. It is to be hoped that no English newspaper will ever take make use of the word "Englander," which has just made its appearance in the Press of the United States. It would be interesting to know whether this phrase is the outcome of the American desire to coin new words at all costs, or whether it is due to the fact that it is the German version of "Englishmen," German terms figuring so prominently in American slang.

Sir A. T. Quiller Couch.

When they hear of the forthcoming retirement of Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch into private life, most newspaper readers will probably be ignorant of the number of offices he holds. Yet he is largely concerned in the public life of the West Country, being a J.P., vice-chairman of the County Education Committee, a member of the County Territorial Association and the County Advisory Committee, and, finally, chairman of the Harbour Commissioners of Kowloon, where he lives and the "Troy Town" of so many of his delightful novels.

The Late Mr. F. Bostock.

Mr. Frank Bostock, the well-known lion tamer and animal showman, who has just died, was actually intended for the Church, but hereditary influences—his father was a showman who married into the Wombwell family—were too strong for him. He first entered a lion's cage when he was a schoolboy of 15, and had numerous hairbreadth escapes, one of the narrowest being when he was mauled by a lion at a gala performance in Paris seven years ago.

Boy Shot for a Monkey.

News comes from Hamamatsu, Japan, that Hatanaro Sudzuki, a boy of thirteen, of Mitsuake in Shizuoka Prefecture, was shot recently while he was engaged in picking acorns on Mount Midzukubo. It was later learned that Yoshidzo Muramatsu, a rice dealer, of Mitsuake, who had been after birds with a shotgun, seeing the boy on the tree mistook him for a monkey. The boy is in a precarious condition. Yoshidzo was arrested by the police.

The Cholera in Japan.

The police bulletin on October 3 reported one new case of cholera in Tokyo the patient being Dr. Watarai Takamashi, a physician in Yushima-Shinbana-cho, Hongo. It also reported the death of a patient in the hospital. This brings the total of cases in the city and suburbs since September 24 up to 166, of whom 10 have recovered, and 77 have died.

SERVICE MATTERS.

The late Colonel Loch.

Lieutenant-Colonel William Loch, whose death is announced, spent most of his career in India, where he was Aide-de-Camp to no fewer than six Viceroys—Lords Northbrook, Lytton, Dufferin, Lansdowne, Elgin, and Curzon. He went through the North-West Frontier Campaign of 1893-3, and in 1879 became Principal of the Ajmer College for the sons and relatives of the Ruling Chiefs of Rajputana. Twenty-one years later he did valuable work in connection with the Rajputana famine relief works.

The Abolition of Ship's Police.

There has been some discussion on the quarter-deck, as well as on the lower deck, respecting the abolition of ship's police, since the recent issue of the new regulations governing naval punishments. Many captains in the Navy are now distinctly in favour of making the petty officers as responsible for the discipline and cleanliness of the lower deck as the sergeants in the Army are made responsible in the barracks-rooms. That a ship can go through a commission without ship's police on board, be well disciplined, and have a small defaulters' book, has been proved by experiment. But the captains who obtained permission to try this experiment were men who took pains to see to its success; and there is still a majority of senior officers in the Navy who prefer to have ship's police in their complement. The Admiralty have, therefore, hesitated to make the sweeping change that abolition would mean. But an equally good and quite as far-reaching change has been made in barring all ship's police from having charge of mess decks, in the smaller vessels of the Fleet. It was in this latter capacity that so much bad feeling was often created between the men on the lower deck, and the senior members of the police force. Petty officers will now do these duties, and perhaps after a few years' training the younger petty officers will so perform this function as to make it possible for ship's police to be abolished.

Married Men in Submarines.

It will come as a surprise to many Service readers to learn that no fewer than nine of the fifteen victims of submarine B 2 disaster were married. According to the "Globe" this exceptionally hazardous branch of the Service is supposed to be manned largely by single officers and men, but the fact of over 50 per cent of the crew of B 2 being married indicates that this supposition is fallacious. Other things being equal, preference is given to single men who volunteer for service in submarines, but the roster is always full of names of volunteers, including a good proportion of husbands and fathers, who are attracted to this branch of the Navy for the sake of the additional rates of pay, which amount to 2s. 6d. a day for chief and petty officers and leading seamen, and 2s. for other ratings. Having in view the number of widows and orphans left by those who perished in B 2 it becomes a serious question whether the submarine service should not be more strictly confined to unmarried men.

The Indian Army.

Rumours are again current that the committee sitting at Simla, under the presidency of Field-Marshal Lord Nicholson, has already decided upon a very considerable reduction in the native army of India, and in the number of British regiments serving in that country. The rumour, which emanates this time from a Madras contemporary, is to the effect that the committee has decided on the disbandment of no fewer than twenty-seven native regiments, and the return home of six battalions of the British establishment. It is considered more than probable that the demand for economy will result in certain reductions, now that our relations with Russia have improved, but the rumours of the extent of those reductions are being received with some caution seeing that the complete report of the Nicholson Committee is not yet due.

CHANNEL TUNNEL.

Revival of the Old Project.

The old question of the "Channel Tunnel" is apparently to be revived again, and an interesting pamphlet has just been issued in which a scheme for the construction of a system of electric railways in England and France to connect London and Paris through a Channel tunnel by a journey of about three hours and a half has made its appearance.

Mr. W. Rose Smith, C.E., takes up the attitude that the remarkable progress made in the development of the facilities for travel and transport, and in the political relations of the countries, during the last thirty years, makes it imperative, in view of the altered circumstances, to reconsider the judgment of a former generation upon the political expediency of a Channel tunnel. The adverse finding of the Joint Committee of 1883 was only carried by a single vote, and, notwithstanding that adverse vote, the members of the Committee were unanimously of opinion that the commercial advantages of the undertaking in this country were of the highest value and absolutely indisputable.

To Come Up Next Session.

"This subject is bound to come up in the next Session of Parliament," an authority who is fully aware of all that is going on in connection with it, has informed the "Pall Mall Gazette." "Time has entirely disproved the flimsy arguments of the opposition of 1883, which were based upon imaginary carelessness in the military defence from a treacherous French enemy. In the growth of the Entente Cordiale, confirmed by the removal of the French Navy to the Mediterranean, leaving the North Sea and the Atlantic coasts of France for defence to the British Navy, we have the strongest guarantee of permanent friendly relations.

"It is well to remember, too, that during the years 1810 to 1815 the defence of the British Isles was fought by a British Army in Portugal, Spain, France, and Belgium, and no foreign soldier set foot on British soil except as a prisoner of war. France is now to Great Britain as Manchuria and Korea were to Japan at the beginning of this century. The foe who vanquishes and occupies France is the potential master of the British Isles.

PALMER & TURNER, Alexandra Buildings, 3rd Floor. Hongkong, 30th Sept., 1912. [708]

"In such a contingency the defence of Western Europe is the most essential British interest, and for this purpose in modern military conditions the railway between London and Paris through the Channel Tunnel would be an invaluable defensive work. A British expeditionary force could be deployed on the borders of France in a few days which would take weeks to send by sea.

Effect on Food Supplies.

"The food supplies would also be guaranteed in case of war or rumours of war, so that prices could not rise as they undoubtedly would if the tunnel did not exist as an alternative to the introduction of food by sea."

Other advantages may be briefly stated:—

"Increased trade between Britain and the Continent.

"Reduced cost of transit for goods and passengers.

"The French people and Government have always favoured the scheme for a Channel tunnel. They never reciprocated the suspicions of a treacherous foe. Being innocent of any evil intent against their neighbours, they could not credit the English with a treacherous attack in time of profound peace." "Let us hear no more about the French enemy seizing the English end of the tunnel by surprise in the absence of the British Fleet and while all English sentries are asleep."

What is suggested to-day is that the permanent Committee of National Defence should review the decision of 1883, with a view of calling for a fresh consideration of the subject by a new joint committee.

The attack on opium is being carried out vigorously. The President has issued a strong anti-opium mandate. Following the example of Anking, Changsha has destroyed a number of chests, and the authorities at Chungking have issued strong injunctions against opium smoking.

HONGKONG, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1912.

THE PRESS AND THE PUBLIC.

Professor Geddes, the well-known Scots sociologist, has been lecturing to the Positivist Society on the interpretation of current events; and the views on the force and functions of the daily newspaper expressed by him contain abundant matter for thought. As might be expected from a man possessed of Dr. Geddes' wide range of thought and intense sympathy with, and comprehension of, the workings of the mind of society at large, he is far from despising "the day of small things." To him every incident of our daily life, however apparently trifling, contains its lesson, its moral, its human interest. In his view, nothing is paltry, nothing devoid of some educative element, great or small, for those who have but eyes to see it; "from the inner meaning of football, to the decisive change that is slowly but surely sweeping over the whole field of education," everything has its meaning and its value.

Summed up, Professor Geddes' contention is just this: that a running commentary on the day's events should exist in the mind of a man while he reads his newspaper; that the facts, as they come to him from the printed sheet, should be kernels or nodules round which his own new thoughts should pack themselves. He goes even farther. "Every man should be his own leader-writer," he says; "and this would not lead to the suppression of the professional leader-writers, but to an enlargement of their ranks." In continuation, Dr. Geddes raises a point which would certainly not occur to the average man. According to him, sex intervenes even in so simple a matter as the reading of the newspaper: "Women usually read first the births, deaths, and marriages, in accordance with their more human outlook, and men, guided by their more cosmic interests, usually commence with the weather." But, even from these minor points, he shows how a high level of discussion on the weather might lead to further scientific discoveries; "while the serious discussion of mating and the entrance and exit of life were the starting points of social science and the birth-throes of the study of eugenics."

Doubtless the lecturer's doctrines are a little idealistic, and contain a trifle too much of what might be; for the English nature—at least in the south—is not exactly of the contemplative sort. The south country Englishman will not only have to improve his education, but must positively alter his temperament, before weather discussions will lead him anywhere beyond the realm of harvest considerations or the prospects of the umbrella and mackintosh lines of business. The southern Britisher, whether of London or the provinces, has neither the steady, ruminative instinct of Professor Geddes' countrymen, nor the swift, piercing insight of the Frenchman, or Italian; and this fact at once limits the application of the lecturer's novel ideas. Of course there is this to be said: The establishment of this new method of newspaper-reading will mainly depend on the papers themselves; on their powers of selection in deciding what shall or shall not be given to the public. The deep thinker must have material worthy of his thoughts, and the man whom Professor Geddes desires to see converted into a thinker by the press must be able to find news that will lead, through interest, to instruction. But does the press of to-day invariably provide such food?

THE SOUDAN.

The transport Soudan arrived here at 5 o'clock yesterday evening from Ching Wang-tao, which port she left on November 6. On board were the 1st Bn. Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers and details of the Somersetshire Light Infantry, etc., etc. The troops are under command of Lt. Col. Hancock and Major Blennerhassett.

The ship encountered a strong N.E. monsoon, feeling its force more especially in the Formosa Channel. At 8 a.m. on the 10th inst. the Soudan sighted a junk drifting, dismantled and without rudder, about twelve miles south of Kuphi Point. Four men on board were making urgent distress signals. The ship bore down on the wreck, lowered a boat and brought off the four occupants. The rescue was effected in twenty minutes and the voyage continued.

According to the survivors' story, the junk had been dismantled and several members of the crew drowned during the gale. The four men have been handed over to the care of the Police, a substantial collection having been first raised for them from among the troops and the Soudan's crew.

INTERPORT MATCH.

TO-DAY'S PLAY FULLY DESCRIBED.

To-day being a holiday, a fine attendance was present at the eighteenth interport match between Hongkong and Shanghai. The special stand in the north-west corner of the ground was fairly well patronised.

Special interest attached to the result of this two-days' match, inasmuch as each port had eight victories to its credit. One match only has been drawn.

The teams to-day were:—Hongkong—R. Hancock (Capt), Lieut. A. G. White, A. A. Claxton, Lieut. Corpl. Dempsey, Lieut. Christian, G. B. Sayer, Lieut. Bagnall, Capt. Crawford, A. C. Elborough, R. O. Hutchison, W. O. D. Turner, Shanghai—L. Walker (Capt), R. N. Anderson, L. V. H. Crookwell, A. E. Lanning, V. H. Lanning, D. E. McEuen, H. E. Muriel, T. G. Tait, H. B. Ollerlessen, W. J. Haynes, J. A. Quayle.

The Play.

Hancock was fortunate enough to win the toss and elected to bat. Captain Crawford and Sayer were the first batsmen. Shanghai had a fine reception.

Sayer, at the Naval Yard end, took the bowling first and scored a boundary from the first ball, though he put it perilously near to third man. The last ball of the second over saw Crawford score a boundary from a pretty late cut. Crawford was playing with caution and would not be tempted even by some inviting off balls. Sayer was just as steady and seemed tempted to nibble at balls that had better be left alone.

Despite his steadiness, however, Crawford was out, with the score at 12, to a remarkable catch in the slips. He touched a ball which second slip reached but could not hold. Walker, however, holding second slip, just renched it and held it, at a second attempt, rolling over as he did so.

Elborough followed and Sayer, as though to show himself undismayed by this early disaster, put a delivery beautifully to leg. Elborough opened the succeeding over with a four to leg and was content to play out the over after. Two maiden overs which followed seemed to indicate that steadiness was the order of the day, but it had to be noted that the setting of the field was admirable. A brace of two's to Sayer—both placed prettily to leg and both stopped just on the boundary—enlivened matters a little. These brought 30 up in just 24 minutes' play.

So far Shanghai's bowling had been steady rather than brilliant; but then the wicket was essentially a batsman's one. Sayer, after thirty minutes' play, was scoring with some freedom and a hard cut—a fine example of perfect timing—went like lightning to the boundary after the previous ball had been off driven for four.

Sayer continued to score with freedom and 50 went up in thirty-five minutes. Of these Sayer had contributed 40. He sent the score to the half century by means of a couple of successive boundaries, though the first saw him give a chance—hard, it is true, but still a chance—in the slips off Quayle.

Quayle was proving expensive, though he always seemed more likely to get wickets than Lanning all the same, and Sayer helped himself to a brace of boundaries—the second a glorious off-drive. Came next a chance in the slips—and his own half-century. He had collected them in 42 minutes, and he deserved all the applause that was given him. Blamishes there had been, it is true, but his innings so far had been marked by clean and lusty strokes—off drives and leg hits predominating.

Elborough had been quiet, but he now helped himself to a four, neatly placed to leg off Lanning, and a single off Quayle. Sayer allowed down for a little, and with the score at 80 he was again missed from a high off-drive, the fielder over-running the ball and judging the catch badly. One felt terribly sorry for Quayle, off whom every chance had been missed. This kind of thing breaks the heart of a bowler, though Quayle was bowling on with rare pluck and resolution. Is the Shanghai team short of bowlers that the opening pair were kept on so long? Not until the score reached 80 was a change tried. McEuen displaced Quayle and Sayer was unkind enough to turn the third ball of his opening over to leg for 4. Lanning, who kept an unimpeachable length, was not score from, but he never seemed likely to take a wicket.

The century went up after 64 minutes' stay, Sayer having 70 to his credit and Elborough 10. But a man who is missed three times ought really to get a respectable total.

Two Players Injured.

In cutting a ball Sayer seemed to twist his knee and Bagnall came out to run for him. Elborough now came into the picture, and sent his score to 20, by placing McEuen neatly to leg for 4. He also turned his attention to Quayle and off-drove him along the carpet for 4. Sayer did as much—a precisely similar stroke—for McEuen. These were admirable strokes executed with an ease that boded ill for Shanghai's chance of displacing them. Elborough, on the other hand, was not so successful in stopping the ball just on the boundary rolled amongst the crowd and injured his leg. He was laid from the field and Hutchison came out to act as substitute.

Sayer Out for 85.

Sayer was now very quiet but he woke up and placed McEuen to leg. He was out to a shocking poor stroke, next ball. McEuen sent up a full toss—perhaps the worst ball that had been delivered all day—and Sayer misjudged it badly. He was easily taken by Quayle. His score of 85, out of a total of 134—had been completed in just as many minutes. He had had luck, to be sure, but he had displayed courage and fine spirit following an early disaster, and he deserved the ovation he received on retiring to the pavilion. Hancock followed, and saw Elborough presented with three through weak fielding at point, where, to be fair, the fielding so far had been uniformly good. Hancock was not too comfortable with McEuen and had luck in gathering his first ten.

The 150 went up in 98 minutes. McEuen was now bowling round the wicket and Hancock placed him to leg for four and off-drove him for a single.

The umpires were Messrs. P. Lambe and P. M. Hodgson.

The score at 12-45 was:—

KOWLOON ROADWAYS.

We would once again like to direct the attention of the authorities to the disgraceful condition of the thoroughfares in Kowloon. Some time back we commented on the study in particular green presented by the overgrown grassy state of Humphrey's Avenue, which branches directly off the main road on the peninsula. We also noted with pleasure that shortly after the appearance in print of our observations, some attention was given this roadway. But it was only some. The rank growth of grass, weeds, bushes, etc., was rooted out and the surface on either side very thoroughly raked about. But nothing further was done. The consequence is that for weeks past the greater part of the roadway has been nothing better than a rough highway of big, loose stones. In its former state one could at least wade through the grass, even though it were almost knee-deep, and feel fairly safe on one's feet; as the roadway now is it is a positive danger to tread in the dark.

THE MANOEUVRES.

Some Impressions of Saturday's "Battle."

Although it is early to talk of the results of, or of lessons to be derived from, Saturday's manoeuvres at Yau-mati, at least two facts of importance were manifest even to the most casual observer who watched the fighting: (1) that a European regiment can show itself perfectly smart and fit, even after all the strain of the enervating Hongkong summer months, and (2) that the conduct of hill warfare in a tropical country may safely be left in the hands of Indian troops.

The large amount of ground covered by the manoeuvres, and the extremely technical nature of the evolutions, made it impossible for the ordinary civilian to gain more than a mere impressionistic notion of what was going on; the intentions of the opposing forces and the main details and result of the fighting are, however, already known to our readers.

The Opposing Forces.

The red forces, under Lieut. Col. Rowlandson, consisted of Engineer detachments, details of R.A.M.C. and I.M.S. together with the 8th Rajputs under Major Ralph and the 126th Baluchis under Major Paul. To these were opposed the 24th Mountain Battery under Major Heppar, the Yorkshires, under Captain Boulton and the 25th Punjabis with D. Company of the 28th, commanded respectively by Major Robinson and Captain Turnbull, the whole force being under Col. Marzable. The Punjabis had bivouacked at Lai Chi Kok overnight, while the remainder of the Blue force assembled to the north of this spot on Saturday morning. The red army for the more part occupied strong positions in the hills, and fighting began soon after 9.30.

Seen from the level, the reds' stronghold, which extended from Diamond Hill to Reservoir Hill, appeared at first to be impregnable, for they seemed able to cover with rifles or maxims every inch of roadway, including the railway lines, they themselves being almost invisible against a hill background which was as nearly as possible the colour of their own uniforms. Only the occasional puffs of smoke, indeed, and the red flags dotted here and there to represent a company, could give the blues any clue to their enemies' whereabouts.

For the first hour and a half both sides fired sparingly, but towards noon, the field guns from the level began to be answered more frequently from the heights, and at length shooting became rapid and general.

A Powerful Attack.

It was not till one reached the hill brows where the principal entrenchments were, that one realised to what a powerful force the reds were opposed. Under cover of Major Heppar's battery, the enemy appeared to be crossing and re-crossing the level, in defiance of the increasingly heavy fire from the hills, of the help rendered by the destroyer and the torpedo-boat in the harbour, and of that from the big guns on Stonecutters. It transpired that the reds were outnumbered by the enemy to the extent of something like four to one. The latter, deploying from the West, remained untiring in their assault, and, long before the bugles sounded "cease firing," there could be little doubt as to the completeness of the blues' victory.

At about a quarter to one the bugles and bagpipes announced that fighting was over, and the forces began to collect near Yau-mati Station to prepare for the march past. The strain of the morning's work seemed hardly to have left a sign on a single man—officer or private, Britisher or Indian; everyone looked fresh, everyone was in good humour. The awkward descent from the hills was accomplished quickly and in good order, and a more workmanlike-looking set of men than those who fell in near Yau-mati Station it would be difficult to find.

The Governor, General Hamilton and the staff officers arrived in rickshaws and proceeded to a spot behind the station for a rough and ready dinner. Meanwhile the troops also refreshed themselves, munching sandwiches, and clearing out the water stock of the Chinese stall-keepers. The Indian soldiers, squatting in characteristic attitudes, gave themselves a dry polish, re-curlled their beards and wiped the dust from their arms and accoutrements in anticipation of the General's inspection.

General Hamilton's Praise. Soon after two o'clock His Excellency and Sir Ian Hamilton, with Brigadier General Eliotson, Major Maddocks, Colonel St. John, Major Tulloch, Major Stuart and Captain Taylor A.D.C., took up their position on a bit of waste ground, separated from the Yau-mati road by a deep nullah; and here the Union Jack was planted. General Hamilton, in plain khaki uniform relieved only by red shoulder-straps, looked every inch of him, the keen soldier that he is; the practical, business-like commander whom no plausible mere outward show of smartness on the part of troops would ever deceive; necessarily the man to balance for and against with absolute impartiality. Coming from such a judge, the praise which he subsequently gave to the men through their commanding officers must have been sweet indeed.

The march past was of a piece with the earlier part of the day's performance; suggestive entirely of "good work and no frills." First came the Number 1 Company of the H.K.S.B. with mule battery, followed immediately by the band of the Yorkshires, who wheeled to the right and remained stationary, while their regiment and the details of the other white troops marched past the saluting base. Following these, came the band of the 25th Punjabis, who wheeled aside in like manner while their regiment's mule-battery passed. The Baluchis, preceded by their pipers, came next, under command of Colonel Rowlandson who was mounted; and, immediately behind them, the Rajputs with their band and maxim brigade—as fine a body of men for mountain warfare as one could wish to see. The maxims, divided into three parts—limber, axle and gun—were carried on the shoulders of little groups of men; and one could easily realise how swiftly large bodies of troops, adequately armed, can nowadays be moved from place to place, and how different modern warfare is from what obtained even twenty years ago.

Fittest of all. After the Rajputs came the 25th Punjabis with their bugle-band; and, finally—next to the European soldiers, the fittest and most shipshape of all the troops assembled—Major Heppar's Hazara Mountain Battery; their guns broken up into five parts and borne by mules.

The final impression stamped on one's mind, on leaving the parade-ground, was that Hongkong's troops will give an exceedingly good account of themselves, whenever and wherever they may be called upon to do so.

BIG FIRE IN CANTON.

A big conflagration broke out in Canton on Saturday night.

An eye witness informs us to-day that the outbreak was a most severe one. He says:

"I should think from the size of the conflagration that more than 600 houses were destroyed. I know that the old Customs House, the Post Office, and the Hongkong Canton steamship wharf, and two large Chinese hotels were totally destroyed."

"The excitement was intense, and the yelling of the Chinese might have been heard miles away, so great was the clamour."

"The fire spread to Honan and many houses were destroyed there; how many I cannot say."

"The flames reached high into the heavens and the sight was a magnificent one."

A boxing competition has been arranged between the 1st Bn. The King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry and the 1st Bn. Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, to take place in Murray Barracks on Thursday evening the 14th inst. commencing at 8.0 p.m.

There will be 14 three-round contests, with possibly one of longer duration.

INTERPORT RECORDS.

Points from Former Matches Between Hongkong and Shanghai.

There have been seventeen interport matches between Hongkong and Shanghai. Hongkong have won eight, Shanghai a like number, and one has drawn. Honours are therefore easy.

The first match was played in February, 1878, in Hongkong, when the biggest victory yet achieved was registered, Hongkong winning by an innings and 204 runs.

Of Hongkong's score of 430 in the first interport, 50 were "extras", no fewer than 41 being "wides".

A terribly distressing event in interport cricket history was the wreck of the P. and O. steamer Bokhara while returning from Shanghai with the Hongkong cricketers in October, 1892. All but two of Hongkong team were drowned.

The biggest one-innings score yet made is Hongkong's 455 for nine wickets—compiled at the last interport played on the Hongkong ground, three years ago.

Shanghai's highest one-innings total against Hongkong is 340, scored at Shanghai in 1897.

The lowest completed innings' score is Hongkong's 46—at Shanghai in 1906. This was the thirteenth match between the rival ports—unlucky 13 again!

For Shanghai the smallest completed innings' total registered is 59—made in the second venture of the first interport game, 46 years ago.

Hongkong's first victory at Shanghai was in 1898. This was the fifth time the Southerners had visited Shanghai.

The first away victory for our Northern friends was in 1901—at the fourth time of asking on the Hongkong turf.

In Hongkong-Shanghai contests only three centuries are on record—all by Hongkong players. They are:—136 by Lieut. Lumsden in 1903; 119 by W. N. Edwards in 1909; and 107 by Capt. Dunn in 1892.

The highest individual score on record is Lieut. Lumsden's 136; and the best Shanghai one-man effort is J. Orm's 91, made at Shanghai in 1891.

Of the 1912 teams, Turner of Hongkong has the highest score of any to his credit—88, knocked up in 1903 at the Northern Port.

The best score made by any number of Shanghai's this year's eleven is R. N. Anderson's 74, compiled in 1908 at Shanghai.

Seven of the twelve men down from Shanghai have taken part in previous interports, none of them, save Crookwell, less than twice before.

Of Hongkong's chosen eleven seven have played before against Shanghai, five only once.

V. H. Lanning, R. Hancock and W. C. D. Turner are the "veterans", all having five previous appearances to their credit.

"Dick" Hancock and V. H. Lanning made their first interport appearance in the same match—at Hongkong in 1901. Turner made his debut at the next interport—in 1903 at Shanghai.

The Hongkong players new to interport honours are:—Lt. White, G. R. Sayer, Lt. Christian and Capt. Crawford.

Shanghai's new hands at interport play are:—J. Quayle, E. G. Tai, J. W. Haynes, H. E. Muriel and D. Lanning.

V. H. Lanning's past scores against Hongkong are:—not out 0; 0 and 31; 0 and 20; 5 and 10; 26. Ollerdesse's totals are:—12 and 18; 54 and 18; 6 and 0 not out; 20. R. N. Anderson has the following to his credit:—1 and 67; 74; 46 not out and 14.

Other Shanghai individual scores are:—L. Walker: 4 and 20; 41 and 42; 6. D. R. McEuen: 18 and 2; 3; 0. P. Lambie: 13 and 0; 10 and 0. L. H. W. Crookwell: 11.

In past interports, R. Hancock's scores against Shanghai are:—68 and 4; 4 and 11; 48 and 35; 5 and 12. W. C. D. Turner's totals are:—38; 20 and 6; 27 and 22; 5 and 3; 76. Elborough has a 58 and 9 and 13 to his credit; Claxton has 11 and 10, and 5 and 23.

The scores made by Hongkong players who have only once before had interport honours are:—Bagnall, not out 37; Hutchison, 0 and 0; Dempsey, 0 and 22.

Past interports have not produced many notable bowling feats. V. H. Lanning, however, had a remarkable record in 1906, taking eight Hongkong wickets for ten runs.

He only bowled nine overs, five of which were "maiden", and he performed the "hat trick" for the one and only time in Hongkong-Shanghai matches.

In the same match Lanning captured five wickets for 34 runs in the second innings.

The next best feat was D. R. McEuen's performance at Shanghai last year. In Hongkong's first innings he captured seven wickets for 12 runs, only just missing the "hat trick."

In the second innings of the same match McEuen took five for 32—a combined average of 12 for 44.

In his only previous appearance in interport cricket, Dempsey took five Shanghai wickets for 94 runs.

Time was when "Dick" Hancock was one of Hongkong's best bowlers, but he has not trundled in interports since 1907. His best record was 4 for 36 at Shanghai in 1906.

R. E. O. Bird is a notable absentee this year. He has appeared five times against Shanghai, first in 1903. He has done good work with the ball.

In Hongkong-Shanghai matches Turner claims highest aggregate score—247, compiled in five matches.

Anderson, of Shanghai, has a total of 202, made in three matches.

The smallest completed double-innings' total in matches between Hongkong and Shanghai was the former's 112, scored in 1906—46 and 66.

Shanghai's lowest full double-innings total against Hongkong was 166, recorded in the first interport and made up of 107 and 59.

The biggest completed two-innings' total on record is Shanghai's 460—representing 294 and 166—made in 1909.

Hongkong's highest two-innings aggregate is 423, made in 1909, and comprising 208 and 215.

C. Y. C. OPENING CRUISE.

Most Successful Event at Kowloon Bay.

Never in the annals of the Corinthian Yacht Club has one of its functions been crowned with greater success than the one held yesterday, at Kowloon Bay. The yachts journeying to the venue numbered over forty, and the picture as they spread their canvas was one that will last long in the memory of those favoured with the opportunity of witnessing it. The northerly wind was a little keen early in morning but towards tiffin time it quietened down considerably, and sun made itself pleasantly felt.

The events were followed with great interest by the extraordinary good attendance of members and friends. During the morning there was a collision in the ladies handicap class race. In this event, as in all the others, there was a capital number of contestants and as four or five of the boats were rounding the Lyemun beacon, the Corinne, which was being sailed by Mr. and Mrs. Bullen, ran into the Violet, sailed by Mr. and Miss Roseman, the last named yacht being considerably damaged on her starboard side. She was eventually towed in.

The course was three miles round the following marks: starting line from west to east between the steam launch Eva and a barge moored alongside the jetty, both of which displayed starting flags; Lyemun beacon, starboard; Quarry Bay Mark, starboard; Channel Rock, starboard; and the finishing line west to east between the Eva and the barge.

Among those present were the Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock, Mr. A. P. Strrie (Hon. Secretary) Mr. Mrs. and Miss Bowness, Mr. and Mrs. Brett, Inspector Withers, Mr. P. Matheson, Mr. J. Taylor, Mr. H. Lee, Mr. Coomber, Mr. F. Lefesty, Capt. Lukmanoff, Mr. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Kent, Mr. West, Mr. McLennan, Mrs. Taggart, Mr. W. Fleming, Mr. Winckler, Mr. Spencer, Mr. Friesland, Mr. and Miss Roseman, Miss Rodger, Miss Wilton, Lieut. Dane Dr. Clarke and Mr. Cunningham.

The officials were: Judges:—Messrs. A. Rodger and C. D. J. Bell.

Clerks of the Course:—Messrs. J. M. Irving and A. Burn.

Sailing boat handicappers:—Messrs. G. G. Wood, J. Reidie, D. K. Blair and C. D. J. Bell.

Motor boat handicappers:—Messrs. Messrs. A. Burn, C. H. Davis and S. Mayes.

Starters:—Messrs. E. F. Gibson and M. Molver.

Timekeepers:—Messrs. G. W. Avenall, E. Bunje and H. E. Scriven.

The programme consisted of nine items, and the results were:

Dr. Clarke, on behalf of the members of the C.Y.C., presented Mrs. Taggart with a silver flower vase ornamented by the Club's colours.

Cheers and a "tiger" brought the enjoyable day to a close.

LADIES AND COOLIES.

Chair-bearers Demand

"Cumshaw."

Two ladies staying at the Hongkong Hotel appeared at the Police Court, this morning, to prosecute four coolies from the Peak for demanding "cumshaw" from them and not completing a journey.

Mr. P. P. J. Wodehouse pointed out to Mr. Melbourne that it was stated that the men ran away because the ladies wanted to photograph them in the chair. The ladies had said that the men asked for "cumshaw."

His Worship:—Did you ask for cumshaw?

First Defendant:—We did not ask for cumshaw; the mistress gave us a five-cent piece each.

His Worship:—Did you ask for cumshaw to be photographed?

First Defendant:—We asked for cumshaw because they had already taken the photograph. They would not give us cumshaw so we ran away.

Coolies Object.

The first complainant said she was staying at the Hongkong Hotel and about four in the afternoon, on Saturday, along with another lady, she engaged two chairs by the Peak Hotel. They asked to be taken up the Peak and then to the Hongkong Hotel, and the men asked for thirty cents for the first hour and twenty cents for each succeeding hour. When they had travelled a few yards she stopped her chair to take a photograph of her friend. The men demanded cumshaw and they were given five cents each. They had been in the chairs only ten minutes. They desired to go to the flagstaff first and the coolies were directed to go there. They refused the money she afterwards offered.

Mr. Wodehouse:—When the coolies refused the money was it made clear that you wanted the chair coolies to go to the flagstaff?

Complainant:—I thought so. We were so sure where we wanted to go and they were hired to take us up, and the Indian told them we wanted to go to the top and also to the Hongkong Hotel. It would be hard for me to know what they understood or not. We told them plainly what we wished to do.

Another lady corroborated the story of the first witness.

A third lady gave corroborative evidence.

The defendants said they were offered ten cents for the journey and they refused it. The ladies wanted to take their photos in the chairs.

A Misunderstanding.

His Worship:—I think in this case there is a misunderstanding.

Mr. Wodehouse:—To a certain extent your Worship, yes.

His Worship:—These men don't seem to understand what was wanted, or that they should go the whole journey.

Mr. Wodehouse:—The young lady says that one of the ladies pointed up the hill as they might have known by that or formed some idea.

His Worship:—The trouble seems to be about a photo.

Mr. Wodehouse:—Well the coolies thought that when they put their ladies down for the photograph to be taken, that was as far as they wished to go. They were willing to be photographed if they were paid.

His Worship:—There is a general misunderstanding.

Mr. Wodehouse:—I think the ladies thought the Indian told them (the coolies) more than he actually did. The ladies thought he had given them full instructions and that would cause further trouble. They said they wanted to go such a distance and the Indian has told them they wanted to go up the hill.

Discharged.

His Worship:—If there was no doubt about it, it is a very serious offence. Ladies, I think there is rather a misunderstanding here and I have to discharge the defendants. Of course it is a very serious offence if they are found guilty and the penalty would be very severe. I must thank you very much for coming up. I am afraid it has wasted a lot of your time coming here and giving evidence. Defendants discharged.

DAIRY FARM NEWS.

DAIRY FED PORK

Charles Lamb in his dissertation on the pig, was the first to tell us how the Chinese love their pig—dead and roasted; but it is not for us! We know that pig, and SOME of the things he is fed on—but not all!

Ah; but this is DAIRY FARM PIG, a dainty little fellow, fed on the fat of the land, DAIRY FARM MILK and all the good things in pigdom.

Is there any difference in Pork? Well, for goodness sake, where do you live? Buy it, try it; eat it, then you will KNOW. Cooked to a turn—the Chinese know how—and the "crackling"—UM.

Don't wait for Christmas, you may be dead before that—and so may the pig! October 18, 1912.

Woman Wireless Operator.

Miss Edith Coombs, a pretty girl with a wealth of red hair, will be the wireless operator on the steamer Roanoke when it sails on its next voyage from San Francisco to Portland and Astoria, says the "San Francisco Call." Miss Coombs is the first woman operator to sail out of this port, and the second woman operator on the Pacific coast, the first being Miss Mabel Kelso, who has been stationed for several months on the steamship Mariposa, which plies between Seattle and Alaskan ports. There has been some opposition to Miss Coombs going to sea as a wireless operator, as it is argued that gallantry on the part of the men of the vessel would not allow her to remain at her post during an accident. But Miss Coombs insists that the travelling public need have no fear as to their safety on her account, as she has decided to remain at her post of duty until the last flickering spark of electricity can be sent from the vessel. If necessary she will remain on board with the captain and the signals of distress sent "Ladies first" will not apply to Miss Coombs.

The Modern Boiler House.

In an article on "Steam Boiler Practice," a writer in "Cassier's Magazine" says:—"The efficiency of labour is responsive to its environment, and there is no reason why the boiler house should resemble the abode of the lost. Grimy and dust laden smokeholds are rarely those most economical of cheap steam production. Good ventilation means much in the way of efficient labour. Order and cleanliness are well worth while, and a touch of the refined is not out of place." Provision for the reasonable comfort of the firemen is too often lacking. The making efficient of the human element is, after all, the most prolific of improvements, and brightness in the visible aspect of the boiler house is in that way productive. Mechanical coal handling plant effectively curtails the cost of labour, and the advantages in the way of cleanliness and orderliness are considerable. Its use enhances the economic value of mechanical stokers, and further advantages accrue from the increased attention which the fireman is able to give to the all-round working of the plant.

Hongkong-built Dredges for Philippines.

Mr. D. M. Carman reports that the first of the three big dredges, to be placed on the Paracale river by the Philippine Dredging Company of Australia, has been unloaded at Paracale. The steamer Ootswold Range went direct there from Melbourne, Australia. The new dredge is a seven cubic foot, close-connected, improved make, and is guaranteed to handle 80,000 cubic metres of earth per month. It is by far the largest dredge thus far constructed for oriental mining purposes. A duplicate dredge has been completed in Hongkong and is nearly ready for shipment. A third one of the same type is being ordered. With these three big dredges running together, with the small one that has been in operation for considerably over a year, the consolidated properties belonging to the Philippine Dredging Company, which are proved to be as rich as any placer grounds thus far tested in the Islands, will do much in adding to the reputation the Gumauos dredge is making for the Islands.

Black Sea Trade—Tonnage Scarce.

In view of the uncertainty as to the course of events in the Balkans, comparatively little business has been done at Baltic lately with Black Sea ports. Tonnage was very scarce, and the freight quoted was the highest for many years—namely, 20s. a ton. The Greek steamers that have been chartered dare not proceed to the Black Sea to fulfil their charges. "Just now," said a well-known ship broker to a "Globe" representative recently "the shipping season is in full swing, and about this time of the year there is usually a rush to get clear of the Azoff before November, when the ice sets in and navigation is rendered impossible. If the Dardanelles are closed, which will probably happen as soon as fighting begins, I fancy there will be such an outcry from the Great Powers interested in the Black Sea trade as will lead them to be opened up again. There are scores of British and other steamers blocked up in the Black Sea and the Azoff, and if the Straits were closed it would mean blocking the tonnage not only in the Black Sea and the Azoff, but on the Danube as well." A representative of one of the largest fleets trading with the Black Sea said the greatest difficulty was caused by the interruption of communications. A steamer, after being loaded with grain in the Black Sea, discharged its cargo at Port Said, or wherever it might be ordered and then proceeded to Constantinople to await further instructions. Meanwhile the owner negotiated freights and fixed up a charter in London, forwarding on particulars to the captain of the ship at Constantinople. Owing to the postal service being interrupted the ship was held up unless the owner cabled instructions, and there was the probability of telegraphic communication also being delayed in the event of hostilities. At present, Greeks control a large part of the Black Sea carrying trade, and Black Sea merchants have been refusing to charter for Greek or Austrian steamers. The effect has naturally been to send up freights, which generally speaking are about double what they were a year ago. A clause is now being inserted in the charter parties making the contract void in the event of the Dardanelles being closed upon the arrival of the steamer at Constantinople.

Effect of Panama Canal Upon Battle-ship Designs.

From the particulars which have been published in America of the prospective dimensions of the battleship just authorized by Congress, it appears that the Panama Canal is likely to have a similar effect upon her design to that which the Suez Canal had upon some of the British battleships built about 15 years ago. The vessel, it is said, will have a displacement of 31,000 tons, as compared with the 27,500 tons of the two battleships authorized in 1911, and her length will be 630ft., as compared with 575ft. But there will not be any proportionate increase in the beam of the new vessel over that of the Oklahoma and Nevada, which is 95ft. The reason for this is said to be that the locks of the Panama Canal, being only 110ft. wide, would be hardly large enough to take safely a vessel with more than 100ft. beam. The appropriation Bill provides for a vessel "carrying as heavy armour and as powerful armament as any vessel of its class, to have the highest practicable speed and greatest desirable action." The heaviest armed vessels at present are the New York and Texas, building for the United States Navy, which carry ten 14in. guns, but the new battleship is expected to mount 12-14 in. guns. Secretary Meyer has already announced that the vessel will be called the Pennsylvania, the armoured cruiser at present so designated having her name changed to Pittsburgh. As the naval authorities have not yet decided on the principal features in the design of the vessel, it will be five or six months yet before plans for her construction are completed by the construction department, while a further two months will be occupied by the delivery and consideration of tenders. The keel of the Pennsylvania will, therefore, not be laid until about May of next year. In that case she should be completed towards the end of 1915 or early in 1916. The vessel, like the Oklahoma and Nevada whose construction has recently been put in hand, will burn oil fuel only, and it seems likely, therefore, that the Texas and New York—the former of which was launched on May 18 last, while the latter will be put afloat on October 30 next—will be the last coal driven battleships to be built for the American Navy. The only other battleships in hand are the Arkansas and Wyoming, authorized in 1909, of which the former was delivered at Philadelphia on August 29, while the latter is expected to be commissioned within the next few days.

Fire on N. D. L. Princess Alice.

The s.s. "Princess Alice" on her voyage from Suez to Aden had a fire on board in No. 5 hold. In order to extinguish the fire the hold had to be flooded. The damaged cargo has been discharged at Aden and the steamer left the latter port on the 28th of October at 1 p.m. No damage occurred to the steamer. A general average has been declared and a deposit of 5 per cent. has to be paid before the goods can be delivered to consignees.

FOOTBALL.
Diocesan School vs. Submarines.
On Saturday afternoon two matches in connection with the second division of the Hongkong Football League were played at Happy Valley.

St. Josephs vs. V.R.C.
The V.R.C. team had more than they bargained for when they met St. Josephs. The latter team had all the best of matters and finished up by winning the match by five goals to one.

H.M.S. Kent vs. R.G.A.
The above-mentioned teams met in a friendly match at Happy Valley on Saturday, the sailors winning by one goal to nil.

AN INTERESTING JUDGMENT.

The Chief Justice, Mr. W. Rees Davies, K.C., delivered an interesting judgment, on Saturday in a case in which, Kwok Sui Lau, merchant of 9, Robinson Road claimed that he was entitled to the possession of premises No. 256 and the second and third floors of 258 Queen's Road Central, held by the defendant as tenant, by will of the plaintiff, the tenancy being duly determined by a notice to quit expiring on March 18 last. He claimed possession and mesne profits since March 18, at the rate of $280 per month, and further mesne profits at the same rate up to the time of obtaining possession. The defence was that the premises were assigned to the plaintiff subject to existing tenancies and that they held a lease for five years of which the plaintiff had full knowledge.

Mr. O. G. Alabaster instructed by Mr. Bruton appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. E. Potter instructed by Mr. Otto Kong Sing for the defendants.

In the previous hearing, it transpired that the defendant's lease was dated March 1, 1911, and the assignment to the plaintiff was not executed until January 17, 1912.

His Lordship held that if the plaintiff had refused to carry out the purchase, the vendors could have sued him for specific performance of the agreement, and that no authority had been cited to show where notice had been given after the purchaser had acquired an equity; in other words to show that the defendant's equity was greater than the plaintiff's.

He consequently found for the plaintiff with costs, the question as to the terms of the judgment to be taken in Chambers of the parties were not agreed.

Gaol Tenders.
Tenders are being invited for the purchase of waste food from Victoria Gaol for the ensuing year, commencing from 1st January, 1913, to 31st December, 1913, inclusive. This consists of the kitchen refuse and waste of rice, congee, vegetables, fish, &c., averaging 200 lb. daily. Tenders are also being asked for the supply of dry earth for sanitary purposes to Victoria Gaol for the space of one year from the 1st January next.
